Effectively Manage Care with the MBMD Reports

The MBMD helps assess psychosocial factors that may support or interfere with a chronically ill patient's course of medical treatment. With three norm groups, one that includes patients with chronic medical conditions, one specific to bariatric surgery candidates, and one specific to patients with chronic pain, this contemporary test can help increase the likelihood of positive treatment outcomes and thereby reduce the overall costs of care.

Pain Patient Report

Customized reports for presurgical and nonsurgical pain patients are useful for:

- Pre-treatment psychosocial evaluations
- Monitoring of treatment interventions and outcomes
- General and expanded behavioral health evaluations to help determine the most appropriate interventions

Bariatric Report

Customized reports for bariatric surgery candidates are useful for:

- Determining a candidate's psychological suitability for surgery
- Assisting patients in making significant lifestyle changes
- Preparing medical staff to respond to patients' likely reactions post-surgery

General Medical Report

The report provides a detailed narrative analysis of the patient's reported strengths and weaknesses in relation to a range of medical conditions, including:

- Obesity
- Cancer
- Diabetes
- HIV/AIDS
- Chronic pain
- Heart problems
- Neurological disorders
- Gastrointestinal complaints
- Gynecological problems
- Injuries
- Organ transplants
